

DOUGHTNUT ECONOMICS - WHO IS HUNGRY FOR CHANGE?

Walking Debate

The rules for our economy should be based on types of economic thinking that are suitable for the 21st century.

When we measure a country's success, we should be factoring in kindness and nature - not just money.

The future would be better if we adopted the doughnut economics model.

In our current economy we don't care if other people are homeless, hungry or suffering as long as we are okay.
